Education & Training

CCASAs education & training programs

facilitate meaningful conversation on topics related to sexual violence, including why it occurs and its impact, and to build capacity within our community to respond to disclosures of sexual violence in a positive and supportive manner.

CCASA's education programs promote a philosophy of a violence-free society and provide accurate information on specific sexual violence issues through a non-threatening and judgement-free approach.

Children & Youth Programs

We offer education and training opportunities for children, youth, caregivers or professionals working with children and youth.

"Who Do You Tell?"™

- A child sexual abuse education and safety program for elementary school aged children, their parents, and teachers. (Ages 5-12)

Birch Grove

- A youth education program that addresses the roots of sexual violence and planting seeds of change. Youth learn about various forms of sexual violence and examine the attitudes and beliefs that are at the root of it. (Ages 13-18)

Training sessions introduce volunteers to CCASA's philosophies and services, and give insight into the ways in which people can make a difference in their communities.

Facilitated Discussions

CCASA's Education & Training team also welcomes the opportunity to lead facilitated conversations on several topics related to sexual violence. These are often customized and tailored to your needs, and typically require a 2 - 3 hour time slot.

Booths & Special Events

You will often find CCASA at schools, conferences, and community events to raise awareness of sexual violence and our services.
