WHO DO YOU TELL™ PROGRAM

A proactive and engaging program that educates elementary aged children, their parents/caregivers, and staff/support/agency workers around the topic of child sexual abuse.

Who Do You Tell™? Program

is an education and safety program that provides children with the skills and knowledge needed to recognize abuse, promote healthy relationships, and learn about body autonomy, and empowers children to access support from trusted adults in order to reduce the impacts of sexual violence.

The program is multi-session and includes teacher/staff training, a parent/caregiver training, informative resources, and follow-up communication.

This program can be provided in elementary schools or any child-serving agency, such as an after-school program.

KEY MESSAGES TO CHILDREN INCLUDE:

1. Children's Bodies Belong to Them
2. Child Sexual Abuse is Never a Child's Fault
3. Tell an Adult that you Trust

FAQ

Will the program scare my kids?

The "Who Do You Tell?"™ program is child friendly and presented in a safe and fun environment for children. Think of it like a fire drill - children are generally not afraid of fires even if they have been taught what to do if one occurs.

Why teach kids the names of private parts?

When children know the names of their private body parts, it makes it easier for them to tell someone if they are being sexually abused. Children are never too young to learn the proper names of their private body parts.

What language do you use to describe child sexual abuse to children?

With children under 9 years of age, we describe child sexual abuse as a 'different kind of not okay touch' to differentiate between 'nice, ok touches' (e.g. hugs, kisses, and high fives) and 'hurtful touches' (e.g. touches that leave marks or bruises). With children aged 10 years and older, we say child sexual abuse and physical abuse.

Did you know?

- One in three Albertans (34%) experienced sexual abuse while they were under the age of 18. (AASAS Prevalence Report, 2019)
- 80-85% of the time, child sexual abuse offenders are known to the child (Stats Can, 1996)
- Child sexual abuse can happen to any child and the majority of cases go undetected and unreported

What to do if a child tells you about sexual abuse:

- Believe the child and remain calm
- Tell the child it is not their fault
- Do not ask why they didn't tell you sooner
- Tell the child you will try to help
- Report the abuse
- Support the child and get support for yourself
